How to Import China Caskets

You want to import China caskets, urns, funeral supplies, body bags, granite monuments?

Importing caskets from China is complicated and can be a huge headache if you don't know what you are doing. Importing itself is a full-time job.

There are essentially 3 ways to import China caskets:

- Import them yourself
- Import through a trading company
- Import through a sourcing/risk management agent

Import them yourself

It is NOT recommended that you import on your own. A typical order of one shipping container involves about $22,000 in product cost, shipping, insurance and fees. You don't want to throw that kind of money into the abyss and hope your caskets arrive safely.

Often Caskets from China have been accused of being of low quality. This mostly occurs when people trying to import on their own directly from the factory. Why? Because with no oversight, quality naturally suffers. It's simple: if you can't be held accountable in some way then your work quality will suffer.

Importing yourself may work well for a while. But, all it takes is one bad order and you've just lost $22,000 or more. You can't send those caskets back to China. You can't speak Chinese. You can't get your money back.

Import Through a Trading Company

This, in my opinion, is the worst way to import China caskets. This is because the trading company usually jacks up the factory cost of the caskets. They skim of the top with no value added. The trading company people are not casket experts. Their only advantage is that they are likely Chinese, they speak Chinese and they live in China. They can help you find the casket manufacturer. And, they can help you purchase the caskets and make sure they arrive here in the States. But they increase the factory cost with no quality or risk management value added. You are essentially paying them for nothing.

Import Through a Sourcing/Rick Management Agent

Next to traveling to China every month by yourself, this is the best way to import caskets from China. One Stop China Source, is the best sourcing agent/risk management to help you import China caskets. Here are the reasons why:

- One Stop China Source: represents YOU, not the factory
- One Stop China Source: communicates your needs to the factory, and factory requirements back to you.
- You pay factory price directly, not to us, this makes us transparent to you the client
- You pay cheapest shipping rates directly, not to us, this makes us transparent to you the client
- One Stop China Source: inspects your caskets and funeral supplies before they leave the factory. Errors are fixed before caskets are shipped
